THE STORY

19

Commendator Giovanni Franzoni, in 1946, in Serle, in the province of Brescia, founded the first nucleus of the company, starting the activity with the transport of coal, produced in the surrounding areas and used as domestic fuel.

With the passing of the years the field of operations was expanded to the transport and trade of quarry stones, once transformed into lime in the famous "furnaces" and then used in the construction field.

In the early Seventies the company began groupage transport, initially for the needs of the military departments of Lombardy and Veneto, and then gradually expanded throughout the national territory.

In 1992 the original company was spun off to create Franzoni Sergio Autotrasporti, which continued its work in the national military transport sector.

The evolution of the service has led, through the promotion of a policy of diversification within its operations to the activation of of various services such as the collection and transport of waste (special, hazardous and non-hazardous) and the transport of material under ADR regime, in particular explosive class I.

In 2001, the company Auxilia was founded, a name deriving from the Latin "auxilia, aeaiuto", to support Franzoni Sergio Autotrasporti, which extends to the removals and portage sector with various types of internal and external handling.

At the end of 2005, for logistical needs, the headquarters was transferred from Serle to the industrial area of Bedizzole, and at the same time Franzoni Sergio Autotrasporti was transformed into an "S.R.L.", thus allowing it to be more operational.
